

This proposal has quite a bit of merit. However, I do not support the adoption of this proposal at this time. I think that rather than amending the testing/licensing requirements piecemeal, it is better to make the changes in concert with a broader revision of the rules governing the Amateur Service. By doing this, the FCC could accomplish both substantive and housekeeping changes in a single rulemaking, at a great cost saving to the taxpayer.